REPUBLICAN LEAGUE TO GIVE RECEPTION TO TAFT

Eleventh Annual Convention in Session-President Hammond Makes Address.

September 30 .- Republican political activity shifted today to New York city, which welcomed a body of voters of that party from all over the country, here to attend the eleventh annual convention of the National Republican League. The leading feature of today's session in Carnegie Hall will be an and sister, Mrs. Godwin and Miss Leize

President Hammond's Address.

In his opening address President Hammond discussed the republican policies and gave much attention to the tariff. Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Haag, at their home legislation, and said that notwithstanding land. these differences all the republican leaders stand unqualifiedly for the basic principle arrived recently in Washington and is of protection as against the policy of free trade advocated by democratic lead-when the Payne bill came to him from it to friends out of town.

The high and patriotic motives which and therefore are not as yet appreciated the winter. by the people of the country. It was by the rresident's masterful character that estly the promise of revision made in the minded and less patriotic than President Taft might have been willing to veto that bill and in that way to have won the plaudits of his countrymen as a President of great force of character-'one who had the courage of his convictions.' But don, Va., returned Friday to Washington, what would have been the result if this She has with her as her house guest Miss bill had been yetoed? In the first place, the relatively high tariff under the Dingley law would have remained in force; in the second place, the -eto would have been a staggering blow to the restoration of confidence and to the renewal of national prosperity, inasmuch as it would have resulted in uncertainty as to the nation's Raleigh, N. C., where she will visit policy regarding this great economic problem. Besides causing disaster to the years of a republican administration with a Congress hostile to the executive the a Congress hostile to the executive, the Macon, Ga. inevitable consequence of which would have been that all the other great progressive measures vital to the welfare of the country would not have been passed, entailing, therefore, irreparable town injury to the nation and great loss of political capital to the republican party."

Revision Was Downward. President Hammond referred to the tariff enactment as "downward revision," "One of the current delusions sedulous ly fostered by democrats is that the high prices of commodities are due to the turned last week from a short visit to Payne tariff law. This has been vocifer-ously iterated and reiterated for sinister of Dr. and Mrs. Alexander E.
